This hike involves a strenuous 6 mile round trip hike ascending more than 1000 feet to a sandstone alcove filled with ancient petroglyphs. Along the trail you will enjoy many beautiful rock formations and spectacular views of the Vermilion Cliffs, Kaibab Plateau and of Kanab. You will be hiking steep uneven terrain and some scrambling is required to negotiate a seven-foot sandstone ledge and then a sandy hill to the top. The Mansard site faces southwest and is very unique. The deeply grooved slides have never been found at any other site. This site is thought to date to the Anasazi period 0 AD to about 1250 AD. It is uncommon to see rock art on the floor of a rock shelter. Please don't touch or walk on the writings, respect and protect this special site.
